	A432 Overbridge Closure Mitigation Drop-In Events On Friday 17 th May engineers from South Gloucestershire Council and National Highways held the first of two drop-in events at Henfield Hall to provide residents with the latest information on the A432 overbridge replacement project and mitigation measures taken by council in response to the bridge closure. A second event took place at Downend Library on Monday 20 th May. National Highways confirmed their current timescales are broadly in line with their initial estimate that the replacement project would take 2 years to complete. The remaining stages are: • Utilities removed and culverted under the M4 – Approx. Nov 2024 • Demolition of existing bridge – Autumn/Winter 2024 • Construction and Installation of New Bridge – Autumn/Winter 2024 to early 2026 Engineers from South Gloucestershire Council's Streetcare team had displays showing additional mitigation measures it will be introducing. National Highways will be paying for some of these measures. The measures include a temporary closure of Nibley Lane between Iron Acton and Nibley at the Robin Hood overbridge. Streetcare has yet to announce when this announced measure will come into force. A temporary Traffic Regulation Order (TRO) is required and these measures would need to undergo public consultation before they can be implemented. Cllr Clark will circulate the slides from the drop in session to the Clerk and councillors.	Cllr Clark

Planning Site Inspections to Allow Residents to Speak

Residents will once again have the right to speak when committee members visit the sites of potentially controversial planning applications in South Gloucestershire. This follows a decision at Full Council on Wednesday 15th May.

Whilst most planning decisions are made by planning officers, under delegated powers, some are referred to one of the council's planning committees by ward members for determination. When this happens, members can choose to visit a site to see first-hand the context of a potential development. Although the public can attend, there was a change previously made in 2018 which meant they could not speak directly with councillors to point out issues they felt should be considered. The council has now reversed that change, so the public can once again have their say, in person and on the ground, whether for or against an application.

Members of the public, applicants for planning permission and other stakeholders will still be able to make representations to members of the planning committees when they meet formally to make their decisions.

South Gloucestershire Council Cabinet Member with responsibility for Planning, Councillor Chris Willmore, said: "We want to improve and increase transparency and accountability in planning. This change gives people living near a site more opportunity to have their voice heard.

"Site visits are really important for councillors who need to enforce the planning laws and policies. They let us see a location, what surrounds it and how development might have an impact – good or bad – for themselves.

"We think people living nearby know the issues that are worrying them and this new system gives them a chance to show councillors, face to face, before it goes to committee. Crucially, it will bring the decision making process to local people, in their community, giving them a chance to speak up and be heard."

Wednesday's meeting also took away the power of the Chair to veto planning applications being considered by the planning committee. Now it will be a majority decision among the planning spokespersons for the three political groups on the council.
